

130/80 Is the New 140/90

Nearly half of U.S. adults are now considered to have high blood pressure.

In November, 2017 the American College of Cardiology revised the recommended blood pressure level from 140/90 to 130/80, placing millions more Americans in the high blood pressure category.